Bowie like he used to be

If you ever thought David Bowie was getting soft and cuddly in middle age, now that he's married to Iman and all that — well, forget it.

With his September-debuting "Outside," the rock icon returns to the realm of bizarre experimental music, with his '70s collaborator Brian Eno producing. The album is set in an apocalyptic world where "art crimes" include ritual murder-as-art.

"Oh, there must be something hummable in it," laughs Bowie, who sees the dark "Outside" as a "gothic drama."

Bowie, who has just finished playing Andy Warhol in the big-screen "Basquiat," heads from New York to L.A. this week with Iman to get ready to make a video for "Outside" in July.

He reveals that he expects to embark on a string of U.S. concerts late this year with the band he assembled for the album.

Life with Rosie

"Roseanne" is now slated to take a break from its summer vacation next month — to crank out as many segments as possible before its leading lady heads to the hospital to give birth.

Roseanne, who's saying this will be her final season with the sitcom, is now in her seventh month of pregnancy. Her series husband, John Goodman, will fly in from San Diego, where he's starring in "Henry IV" at the Old Globe, to tape the show on Monday nights, the play's "dark night." Her series daughter Sarah Gilbert plans to squeeze in a European vacation with some friends around the "Roseanne" segments she'll do here in July and before she starts her junior year at Yale.

Cyberspace rendezvous

Tom Hanks and Ron Howard will spend the evening of June 29 in the headquarters of CompuServe's Entertainment Drive in New York, conducting the first-ever on-line simulcast with members of CompuServe, America Online and Universal's Internet web site. Entertainment Drive's Michael Bolanos will host the conference, which will give electronic highway travelers a chance to ask questions of the star and director of "Apollo 13."
